Topic Identifier:	SPA.2013.2.1-01
Publication Date:	10.07.2012
Deadline:	21.11.2012

Area:	2.1 Research to support space science and exploration
Topics:	2.1-01 Exploitation of space science and exploration data
Funding Scheme:	Collaborative Projects (small or medium-scale focused research project)
Call Budget:	126,0 Mio. €

Particular Requirements: In the context of international cooperation, a diversified approach is a key element in Europe's space policy. Candidates for cooperation among other established or emerging space powers are the United States, Russia, Canada, People's Republic of China, India, Japan and the Ukraine. Following bilateral consultations with Ukraine during 2011, topics which are of mutual interest and benefit for European industry and the Ukraine will be highlighted in the call. In general, the participation of countries for which a specific Space dialogue (e.g. South Africa) or S&T cooperation agreements (e.g. Brazil) are in place, or third countries included under the ICPC list (International Cooperation Partner Country (ICPC) is a third country which the Commission classifies as low-income, lower-middle-income or upper-middle-income country and which is identified as such in the work programmes, see list in Annex 1 to the Work Programme "Cooperation"), is particularly welcome. The use of space applications can contribute to their economic and social development and support environmental protection.

This topic is open to international cooperation and should focus on downstream R&D activities complementing space missions, such as the effective scientific exploitation of existing data. Cooperation with international partners from third countries (ICPC), or countries which have signed an agreement with the EU covering Science and Technology, as well as other space-faring nations (e.g. US, Japan) will help to expand the use of data, the corresponding data processing and management methods in third countries, and enhance research partnerships with emerging or established space powers. Therefore such international partners will be eligible to participate and to be funded and this aspect will be taken into account in the evaluation.
