New entries:

- Association of Austrian Machinery and Metalware (consolidated)
- Association of the Austrian Cement Industry (VÖZ)
- Austrian Tile Stove Association
- Austrian Association of Roofers and Varnisher for Coachwork
- AAA – Austrian Automotive Association Service GmbH
- RTCA – Rail Technology Cluster Austria
- Austrian Chamber of Pharmacists
- Federation of Austrian Industry / SME Working Group
- Austrian Association of Prefabricated Houses
- Austria Solar – Austrian Association for Support of the Solar Thermal Energy
- The Austrian Poultry Federation (ZAG)
- Vienna IT Enterprises (VITE)
- Austrian Association for the Recycling of Construction Material

Changes and updates of organisational name, phone numbers, contacts and missions.

Changes of layout: This overview was established by BIT in April 2004. Since BIT was merged into the FFG (Austrian Research Promotion Agency) in September 2004, the front page was altered to the FFG layout in respect to corporate identity. The content remained the same.

1 INTRODUCTION

SME in Austria

The Austrian industry consists largely of SMEs (Small and Medium sized Enterprises).

From around 287.000 companies situated in Austria, less than 1.000 have more than 250 employees (source: Statistic Austria).

Additionally 218.000 enterprises are existing in the field of forestry and agriculture, nearly all with less than 250 employees (source: Statistic Austria).

SME-Associations in Austria

There is no so-called „SME-Association“ existing in Austria. But given the above situation, Associations for companies are nearly entirely made up of SMEs and represent their interests.

In this overview different Associations made up by companies from certain sectors are listed including

- Trade Associations, National Associations, Federal Associations:
These include the so-called „Fachverbände“ and „Bundesinnungen“. The task of the different „Bundesinnungen“ is similar, the sectors they represent are self-explanatory from the title of the Association (e.g. Austrian Association of Shoemaker). Where no official English name of an Association was available, the official German name was translated by BIT.
- Clusters:
These are regional networks made up from SMEs active in certain industry sectors, e.g. Automobile industry (supply-chain), wood etc.

The collected information about these organisations include

- number of members
- website
- contact details
- mission statement

This overview tries to present a rough compilation of Austrian Industrial Associations which might be relevant for Research and Development projects. Its aim is to help foreign organisations to find partners in Austria for European research – projects.

This overview is not exhaustive.

2 AUSTRIAN TRADE ASSOCIATIONS AND NATIONAL ASSOCIATIONS

2.1 INDUSTRIAL TECHNOLOGIES & TRANSPORT

2.1.1 Association of Austrian Machinery and Metalware Industries Fachverband MASCHINEN & METALLWAREN Industrie

Number of members: 1374
<http://www.fmmi.at>

Contact

Berndt-Thomas Krafft
Wiedner Hauptstraße 63
A-1045 Vienna
Tel: +43/(0)5/90900-3482

Mission

The Association of the Austrian Machinery and Metalware Industries (FMMI) is an autonomous professional organization within the framework of the Austrian Federal Economic Chamber.

The FMMI represents the interests of its members in the industrial branches

- Agricultural tractors
- Bearings, gears, gearing and driving elements
- Central heating radiators and boilers
- Fittings and valves
- Foundry and metallurgy machinery
- Furnaces and furnace burners
- Gas and water gas generators
- Locks and hinges
- Machine tools
- Mechanical engineering
- Pumps and compressors
- Steel and light-alloy structures
- Surface refinement and heat treatment
- Tanks, reservoirs and containers
- Tools
- Tubes and Sections
- Wire and Wire Products
- Vehicle Components

and offers target-group oriented services and informations. The FMMI is partner and first contact for all kinds of inquiries.

The Austrian machinery and metalware sector is Austria's biggest sector of material goods (industry, trade and crafts).

In the year 2005 the production value of the Austrian machinery and metalware amounted to a total of 34.3 billion EURO. For the year 2006 a production increase of 6 % was expected.

Due to the small domestic market, the Austrian manufactures of machinery and metalware have been forced to increase their export activities, pushing the export quota to 70 %, which is far above the average level of the Austrian manufacturers of material goods.

2.1.2 Austrian Non-Ferrous Metals Association Fachverband der NE-Metallindustrie

Number of members: 67
<http://www.nemetall.at>

Contact

Herbert Bardach
Wiedner Hauptstrasse 63, Zi. 3317
A-1045 Vienna
T: +43/(0)5/90900-3310

Mission

The Association of the Non-Ferrous Metal Industry is the representative body of all Austrian companies active in the field of non-ferrous metals.

The paramount object of the Association is to provide sustainable benefit to the NF metal sector, through its own activities within the framework of representation as well as through clearly defined, focussed services, in a cost-optimised structure and with a customer-oriented approach.

As a federation of employers, the Austrian Association of the Non-Ferrous Metal Industry negotiates collective agreements for its members.

In major issues, the Association provides members with relevant information already in the preparatory phases and attempts to find a timely settlement of interests within its own ranks. In a clearly defined lobbying process the Association acts in good time as a strong advocate for the sector within the WKÖ (Chamber of Economy), and, on a selective basis, vis-à-vis national and international authorities and federations.

In order to strengthen the representation of interests, the Association strives to concentrate its forces in theme-specific platforms and cooperations with other specialized organizations, as well as with foreign sister federations and other entities.

Desirous to ensure full operational capacity in a lean structure the Association continuously upgrades its scope of services in accordance with members' needs.

2.1.3 Association of the Austrian Mining and Steel Producing Industry Industrie Fachverband Bergbau-Stahl

2.1.14 Trade Association of the Construction Industry Fachverband der Bauindustrie

Number of members: 190
<http://www.bau.or.at>

Contact

Manfred Katzenschlager
Schaumburgergasse 20
A-1040 Vienna
T: +43/(0)1/7183737-17

Mission

The basic legal and economic conditions are undergoing unprecedented changes at present. As a result, the companies of the construction industry are confronted with a myriad of conflicting interests.

The central task of the Trade Association of the Construction Industry is to ensure that the member companies take a united public stand on issues, particularly in debates on economic and social policy, and that they have the more compelling arguments on their side.

As a corporate body under public law, the Trade Association is a sub-organization of the Austrian Economic Chamber and has its own independent scope of authority. Its purpose is to represent the interests of the member companies effectively in relation to the political authorities, the Social Partners, public and private customers, and within international organizations.

Membership in the Trade Association gives companies a say in the formulation of new laws and ordinances which they would not otherwise have. The Trade Association is also authorized to conclude collective agreements on behalf of member companies.

With its range of services, the Trade Association helps companies in the Austrian construction industry succeed in business on national and international markets and retain their long-term competitiveness. It constantly observes cyclical developments and compiles detailed statistics, giving companies a solid basis on which to sector customers, the Trade Association ensures that prices are not calculated in ways detrimental to member companies.

Employees at companies in the building industry are kept abreast of all the latest developments by attending information events, courses and seminars covering basic and advanced training, environmental protection, awarding of contracts, etc. Its constant PR efforts ensure that the public is always aware of the problems and concerns of the construction industry.

To represent the interests of the construction industry effectively, the Trade Association is active in national and international organizations and institutions:

- Federation of the European Construction Industry -FIEC
- Technical and vocational college operator companies
- Lehrbauhöfe Süd und Ost (training institutions)
- Bauarbeiter-Urlaubs- und Abfertigungskasse (leave and severance payment fund for construction workers)
- Arbeitsmarktservice Bau-Holz (public job referral service for the building and lumber sector)
- Arbeitsgerichtliche Senate (labor mediation board)

Mission

Vienna IT Enterprises (VITE) is the network for ICT companies in Vienna.

By bringing enterprises, research, development and educational institutions together VITE promotes efficient co-operations and provides its members with a multitude of services such as events, workshops, presentations at home and abroad, information on public funding and professional location consulting.

What VITE offers:

- Networking and events
- VITE Groups and workshops
- Presentations at home and abroad
- Support of co-operations and projects
- Information on public funding
- Professional location consulting
- Strengthening of competitiveness

Every tenth Viennese company is an IT or telecom enterprise. More than a third of all Austrian enterprises in this industry are located in the capital city and generate about 75% of the Austrian total turnover. Vienna is thus not only the major national IT location, but has even developed into the IT capital of Central Eastern Europe. VITE acts as a catalyst. The main target of VITE is to strengthen co-operations and to initiate projects between IT enterprises.

VITE is located on Höchstädtplatz in Vienna's 20th municipal district, which together with parts of the 2nd district is an Objective 2 area.

Mission

The ACVR is the network for innovative enterprises and trend-setting technologies. The medium and long-term goals of the Automotive Cluster Vienna Region (ACVR) are the increase of the innovation level and of the creation of value of the enterprises in the Vienna Region.

The overriding objective of ACVR is to network the existing expertise in the Vienna region and to initiate innovative cross-border projects together with partners in the automotive region CENTROPE where 5% of the worldwide car production will take place up to the year 2008. The close geographic position to the booming automotive production sites in Eastern Europe and the good contacts to their decisive actors are the areas the ACVR primarily focuses on its work for the automotive supplier companies of the Vienna Region.

The strength of the Vienna region lies in the cross section technologies: not only the classical automobile subcontractors but also electronics and telematics subcontractors as well as various service providers, research, development and educational facilities are ACVR partners. The thematic combination of means of transport and traffic routes are the focus of the network activities.

Mission

The Upper Austrian Wood Cluster (MHC) is a cross-branch network for supporting and promoting partnerships with innovative wood suppliers and processors. We support the competitiveness and innovation of businesses that

- manufacture furniture with wood and wood-based materials,
- use wood and wood-based products as building materials, and
- use wood for interior decor

including their suppliers (manufacturers of semi-finished products, professional tradesmen and machine and plant builders).

The aim is to make use of all opportunities for innovation in the value-adding processes, strengthening the supplier functions and stimulating co-operation between the businesses themselves, and between the businesses, their suppliers, related trades, research and development facilities and training and further education institutes.

The Upper Austrian companies have clear fields of expertise in the furniture, interior decor and wood construction sectors. The MHC is designed to boost their market position by pooling resources and marketing them using new projects.

These activities are to especially involve small to medium sized businesses. We aim to improve innovation capabilities and increase the national and international competitiveness of our partner companies.

E: latzko@fcio.wko.at

Mission

The Austrian Biotech Industry (ABI) aims to make the public and decision makers more aware of the potential and requirements of biotechnology. With its seat at the "Association of the Austrian Chemical Industry", ABI represents the interests of members such as established companies and biotech "start-up" businesses from the field of medical biotechnology. ABI represents about 60 percent of the Austrian net value added in the field of biotechnology.

The sustained growth of this dynamic branch of the economy is dependent on investment in research and development. At the same time, a correct political framework must be created which meets the demands of economy and science.

Current ABI activities are particularly concerned with patent law and gene technology law. ABI is also at the forefront in assuring that sufficient venture capital is available for innovative companies.

Additionally, ABI offers well-researched scientific information for the formation of balanced opinions. With its aim to harmonize the demands of established and new biotech companies for a supportive framework, ABI is taking a leading role in Europe.

Mission

Austrian water is a voluntary co-operation of various enterprises which are active on the water sector. Each enterprise is “connected” with the other members of austrian water by mutual assistance in the performance of their tasks. The individual enterprise concentrates on its speciality and leaves the tasks where it is not so efficient to other enterprises which are specialized in these tasks. Such a co-operation depending on the strength of each enterprise overcomes individual shortcomings.

Austrian water not only concentrates on Water Supply and Waste Water Disposal. The self understanding of austrian water is such that Water Management is regarded on the whole: it is embedded in a real River Basin Management, from Storm Water and Water Supply to Waste Water Disposal, including Land Use and Flood Protection, Agriculture and Irrigation, Leisure and Tourism Activities, all in a healthy environment

Mission

The objective of our Society is the comprehensive and interdisciplinary promotion of information processing, with due regard to its effects on man and society. In fulfilling this objective, the Society performs five primary functions:

- It serves as an umbrella organization of associations, organizations, and institutions in Austria involved in information processing (institutional members).
- It represents Austria in the IFIP (International Federation for Information Processing) and in similar regional associations (e.g. CEPIS - the Council of European Professional Informatics Societies - and IMIA - the International Medical Informatics Association).
- It is affiliate member of ACM (Association of Computing Machinery) and of the IEEE Computer Society.
- It provides members with services, information and consultation.
- It promotes research and development projects, especially those of an interdisciplinary nature.
- It has established several Working Groups dealing with specialized aspects in the field of information technology.
- It organizes international conferences and congresses and helps its member institutions to organize such events.

At this time the Austrian Computer Society has more than 1500 individual members and more than 100 supporting and institutional members and it provides with our monthly mailings including information about national and international events such as conferences and congresses and our own journal "OCG Journal", which is published at least five times a year (in German language).

Members also have the advantage of obtaining reduced participation fees for conferences organized or supported by the Austrian Computer Society or any of their institutional members.
